| Description | The Difi High Risk List contains information on high risk products. Products are defined as “high risk procurement” when there are systematic documented high risk of human rights abuse occurring in the supply chain, meaning the value chain from raw material extraction to component production until finishing assembling. The documentation is based on reports and studies by ILO and other relevant sources, such as reports from civil society, unions and academic organizations. To make the list relevant in the daily practice of public procurers, specific product categories from each product group have been selected based on Norwegian public procurement activities. |
